ting up a “back to the future” scenario. There is still a covenant between God and man, and the relationship is not broken by death. We hear about the God of the living, and know that death is not the end of life. Resurrection continues life in another way. Jesus says that the life to come will not be as life is now. The Sadducees definitely don't understand the theology that Jesus speaks of. Luke 20:34-38 (Celebrating Sunday for Catholic Families 2016-17)

PEACE: May God bless you in the midst of tension and stress, when nerves are taut and the pressure to succeed is high. May you stop and experience the key of God’s peace ever so gently unwinding and releasing the tightness and pressures of the day. May you rest in the knowledge that God receives you just as you are and invites you to do the same. God loves you beyond telling. May this realization bring you into a place of tranquility and self-care. May the God of all PEACE bless you. Sr Maxine Shonk, OP

32nd Sunday in Ordinary Time “May our Lord Jesus Christ himself and God our Father, who has loved us and given us everlasting encouragement and good hope through his grace, encourage your hearts and strengthen them in every good deed and word.” 2 Thessalonians 2:16-17 There are two important lessons here. First, we are called to be generous with our encouragement and hope. As God shows us mercy, we must be merciful to others. Second, joy is contagious! The joy we receive from doing good works not only strengthens us, it encourages others as well.

Guidance from our Shepherds

“The right to life is the most important and fundamental right, since life is necessary for any of the other rights to matter. There are some issues that can legitimately be debated by Christians, such as which policies are the most effective in caring for the poor, but the direct killing of innocent human life must be opposed at all times by every follower of Jesus Christ. There are no legitimate exceptions to this teaching. The health of our nation depends on a deep respect for human life from the moment of conception until natural death, and the future of our society depends on how we protect that right.” —
Archbishop Samuel Aquila of Denver

“In our country, over one million unborn children are killed by abortion every single year. All Catholics have a moral obligation to keep this human-rights catastrophe at the forefront of their minds when voting.” — Bishop John Brungardt of Dodge City, Kansas

“Life is the first right. ... God gives us the gift of freedom to choose what is true and good, and therefore it is never right for anyone to choose directly or indirectly what is intrinsically evil, especially when that choice destroys the gift of life. No one ever has a ‘right’ to exercise the gift of freedom to deprive an innocent person, especially an unborn child, of his or her right to life. As we form our consciences in this and every election, our first consideration is always where a candidate stands on the first principle: the right to life.” — Bishop Paul Loverde of Arlington, Virginia

“(O)n some issues the moral obligations of Catholics, and the demands of the common good, are abundantly clear. For example, no Catholic an vote in good conscience to expand legal protection for abortion, or to support the killing of unborn children. ...Abortion is a grave, unconscionable and intolerable evil, and we cannot support it in the voting booth .” —Bishop James Conley of Lincoln, Nebraska
